

Who Has The Right?

Sammy Hagar

Here's a message from the heart, are you listening?

Some things belong to you and no one else

Oh, one more life is taken, and that's one more than God allows

And there's another on the row shouting out, who has the rights? And there's a war out in the streets that no one is winning

Tell me, when did a human life become so cheap And how can we take away what we did not create

Beyond the power of the conscience

Beyond the power of the state

Tell me, who, who has the right?

Well, no one has the right Everyone's a victim and everyone's to blame

Oh, and we are all so different, yet the same

Oh, and everyone's the master of their own destiny

As long as one of us is chained, none of us are free Oh, how can we take away what we did not create?

Beyond the power of the conscience

Beyond the power of the state

Tell me, who, who has the right?

Well, no one has the right, the right Oh, how can we take away what we did not create?

Beyond the power of the conscience

Beyond the power of the state

Tell me, who, who has the right?

Well, no one has the right Are we making a mistake here?

Well, there's no room for that Who has the rights?

No one has the right

Who has the rights?

They don't have the right Who has the rights?

No one has the right

Who has the right?

We'll have the right Who has the rights, oh no, the rights

Who has the rights

We'll have the rights

Who has the rights

No one has the right

Who has the rights, oh no

We'll have the rights
