Stop Pretending

Vicci Martinez

Woke up in a riddle
Without knowing what to do
Stuck solving a puzzle with no clues
I'm right in the middle
Of every dream becoming true
But it all means so little without youI'd never say these words to anyone else
I always play a part with everyone else
Been wasting too much time not being myself
But with you, I stop pretending
Drank some wine to finally confess
That there's a wounded heart inside of my chest
And now I want you back, cuz I feel like a mess
But with you I stop pretendingKeep hearing the echo
Of how you used to say my name
But I'm stuck in the shadow of my painHello baby, are you there?I'd never say these words to anyone else
I always play a part with everyone else
Been wasting too much time not being myself
But with you, I stop pretending
Drank some wine to finally confess
That there's a wounded heart inside of my chest
And now I want you back, cuz I feel like a mess
But with you I stop pretendingHello baby, are you still there?I'd never say these words to anyone else
I always play a part with everyone else
Been wasting too much time not being myself
But with you, I stop pretending
Drank some wine to finally confess
That there's a wounded heart inside of my chest
And now I want you back, cuz I feel like a mess
But with you I stop pretending
