

I Want You

Moloko

I want you, though you dare to deny it
I'm always reminded of you, oh
And the more you forbid me
The more I need you to give me
Morning comes upon us to impose another day
Though I might try to force myself to sleep
Why should I face up to another waking day?
If there's a chance you'll come to me in dreams
The world keeps right on turning anyway
While I stay home and watch those shadows play Innocence is lost into the dark
If I was dynamite,
Would you provide a spark? Oh!
I want you, though you dare to deny it
I am always reminded of you
And the more you forbid me
The more I need you to give me
I don't know what to do,
though you dare to deny it
I'm always reminded of you
And the more you forbid me
The more I need you to give me
If only you could see my life turning inside out
A heart that keeps attacking me, always in my mouth,
If my skin were glass, my love, you would see a heart that keeps on beating only in the hope that you'll return to me
I don't know what to do,
though you dare to deny it
I'm always reminded of you
And the more you forbid me
The more I need you to give me
I want you, though you dare to deny it
I am always reminded of you
And the more you forbid me
The more I need you to give me
I don't know what to do, though you dare to deny it
I'm always reminded of you
And the more you forbid me
The more I need you to give me
I want you, I am always reminded of you
I want you, always reminded, I'm always reminded, I'm always reminded, I'm always reminded of you.
