"you'll never see a straight face from me i've got a problem showing emotion and sucking up my guts you'll never get an answer from me i always keep it stuck in my head a million words i could have said you say you're so overwhelmed with grief
don't you say, you know anything about me don't you say, you know i heard you said you know don't you say, you know anything about me i'll never show you my frustrations I'll act accordingly to hold it back i find it hard to just relax please disregard my opinion i try to only care when i'm asked it helps to get off my chest you say you're so overwhelmed with grief
don't you say, you know anything about me the point has been right in front of you, in plain view the past it does not only repeat it haunts you, i can't get you the words you said out of my head out of my head don't you say, you know i heard you said you know don't you say, you know anything about me
don't you say, you know anything about me"
