Isabella

This Ascension

she stepped out of the lobby into the jungle all she needed to do was run her fingers through her long black hair out of the city's millions I'd see her again, again, again she took me over captivating me simply walking down the street in the spotlight on the mattress above in the night have I known you a thousand years what have you done to me I see you, my mind goes wild go ahead, defy society I still lie awake at night stabbed with dark delight Isabella, long gone now over the continents and seas alone, another city the wretched, the wonderous Isabella
what are you thinking now Isabella
