I Think Beards Are Great

The Beards

I remember your face,
As you opened your eyes
And stared at me in the soft morning lightI remember your hand,
As I held it in mine
And I kissed your lips for the very first timeI remember the sunrise, the birds were singing
As the winter in my heart turned into spring
So why were you not there in my november?
Oooh, I rememberI remember those days,
I remember those nights,
The passion and fire of a love so bright,
You know it burns so strong and it burns so fast
But a feeling so good could not possibly lastI looked into your heart and into your soul
And allowed myself to just let go and be swept away in love surrender
Oooh, I rememberBeards (x34)I remember your face,
I remember your eyes,
I remember your tears as we said our goodbyes
You know a part of my heart will always be yours
You took it with you when you walked out that doorFrom our first "Hello"
To our last embrace
And might I just mention that I think beards are great
The fragile beauty of a love so tender
Oooh I rememberBeards
