

Misunderstood

Better Than Ezra

Talking in her sleep again
Reciting lines start to end
She's not crazy, knock on wood
Just a little misunderstood
Takes a walk at 4 A.M.
Wakes the neighborhood again
And I found myself recalling
Everything she used to tell me
Aw yeah, alright
Truth hurts inside
Aw yeah, that's right
You go around once in life
Everybody wants to be a part
Everybody loves a situation
Who would ever want to play the part
Of anonymous numbers on a governmental chart?
She's waiting tables the next day
She pulls a double then on her way
To an audition in Hollywood, yeah
A little misunderstood
We sit around the house
Waiting for the phone to ring
And I know she alone holds the key
To everything I want to be
Aw yeah, alright
Truth hurts inside
Aw yeah, that's right
Go around once in life
Everybody wants to be a part
Everybody loves a situation
Who would ever want to play the part
Of anonymous numbers on a governmental chart?
Everybody wants to be your friend
When you've got something you can give them
All I've seen, bad and good, she's not crazy
Just a little misunderstood
Aw yeah, all good
She's not crazy
Just a little misunderstood

Two years later you're a star
Who'd have thought we'd get this far?
But I'd give it all away if I
Could see you on that day again
When you quit work
And threw that coffee at the manager jerk
Said, "Close your eyes, I've got a surprise
A house in the hills and a car that drives by"
Aw yeah, alright
Truth hurts, don't it? Inside
Aw yeah, that's right
You go around once in life
Everybody wants to be a part
Everybody loves a situation
Who would ever want to play the part
Of anonymous numbers on a governmental chart?
Everybody wants to be your friend
When you've got something you can give them
All I've seen, bad and good, she's not crazy
Just a little misunderstood
She's not crazy
Just a little misunderstood
She's not crazy
Just a little misunderstood
Aw yeah, all good
She's not crazy
Just a little misunderstood

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>