Joining The Circus

Far

Never won a medal for bravery
Never won a medal for tact
Never thought the truth would enslave me
Turn me into something so close to a liarI'm joining the circus
I'm going away
Waving from the boat
I don't cryLooking at the ocean washes tear,
AwayI will arrange.
Savor the lie
Go blind on all these words
Divine myself this urge.I'm joining the circus,
I'm running away
The people I won't know,
The places I won't stay.Now where is the circus?
I only see clowns,
Half naked girls and mirrors
I leave them in the sea to drown.I love her now.
