Blue

Remembering Never

bat your eyes 1000 times ive dreamed of touching your face i never thought it could be this good ill never forget you not in a million years something about how good you look underwater like the dream ive had since you looked the other way but now you can only look up cant you? my angel you look so scared a few more bubbles a little more effort and you'll be home its only water i promise its only water thats a promise so you think they'll miss you say how they once touched your hair besides to brush the mud out how beautiful you are at least till they find you you'll always remember my wavy face and ill always remember that lovely shade of blue you wore that night that tag on your toe says " I love you " I loved you something about how good you look
