Looking Down from the Edge

blessthefall

Wake up
Do I need these things that I'm asking for
So I'll give up
And turn in the dreams that I've been sold
You'll never know
The lines that were crossed
Just to make it home
So I'll cover up
The fear that I'm not there for anybodyWish I was Getting used to this
Every chance I get, I let it go
And every moment spent is not enough
Wish I was
Getting used to all of thisI'm looking down from the edge
Would I do it again?
Would I trade the world that I know now
For a day that I don't miss you?
I'm looking down from the edge
Would I do it again
But it's getting hard to understand
Why I'm wide awake, but barely breathingI've spent all my energy
Justifying my failures at close range
(Every chance I get, I let it go
And every moment spent is not enough)
Pull the trigger, I've been such a waste
Neglecting life and love it's one in the same thing
(Every chance I get, I let it go
And every moment spent is not enough)Wish I was Getting used to all of thisI'm looking down from the edge
Would I do it again?
Would I trade the world that I know now
For a day that I don't miss you?
I'm looking down from the edge
Would I do it again
But it's getting hard to understand
Why I'm wide awake, but barely breathingI know I've got so much to lose
For me to turn my back on you
The writings on the wall, we were meant to fall
Don't regret the life we choseLooking down from the edge

Would I do it again?
Looking down from the edgeI'm looking down from the edge
Would I do it again?
Would I trade the world that I know now
For a day that I don't miss you?
I'm looking down from the edge
Would I do it again
But it's getting hard to understand
Why I'm wide awake, but barely breathing

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/