

White Water Siren

The Tea Party

Imagine this, if it falls in place
And your love, under will, comes as grace
All you'll see is mystery face to face

Would you tell, should you speak, could you say
That the love, that you feel's, come of age
All you see is mystery and obey

And put your arms around her waist
Remember all forgotten days
The seduction song - this white water siren song

Circles me, circles you, circles all
And enchants, and delights, and enthralls
All we see is mystery, all in all

Everyone's a star that shines
All we see in life are signs

Should I tell, could I speak, could I say
That my love, under will's, glimpsed its grace
All I see is mystery, and I obey
