

Suicide Note, Part II

Pantera

Cheap cocaine, a dry inhale, the pills that kill and take the pain away

Diet of life, shelter without, the face that cannot see inside yours and mine

When I'm hiding, when I need it, it lets me breathe, for our handle on this life, I don't believe this time Would you look at me now?

Can you tell I'm a man?

With these scars on my wrists

To prove I'll try again

Try to die again, try to live through this night

Try to die again

Forever fooling, free and using, sliding down the slide that breaks a will Mothers angel, getting smarter, how smart are you to regress unfulfilled? It's a damn shame, but who's to blame?
