

Bone Trophies

Satellites

As cold as cold can be behold
I will see you sleep alone
With all that ever came to love
For you I take away instead now
Everything you hold so dear Replace with all the things you fear
Remove you from the safe and warm
And place you in the face of harm now
You said I'd be under your wing
The bone trophies upon the table gave no warning
I learned my lesson now I learned my lesson now
I had pure liquid in my bones
I held the world up on my own
I let you in The privileged few
You came and raided all that you could hold
You said I'd be under your wing
The bone trophies upon the table gave no warning
