Only Time Can Take You On

Kim Churchill

Fighting to begin I knew not what was in store.
I could not help you. Could not help you anymore.
I let the silence win now the sound is still clean.
Paving the footpaths of the roads we once made.
Holding onto your hand as your breath began to slow.
Thanks for the guitar, thanks for all the things you know.
Bending the note to fit the contours of a dream.
Waking to find you're not as far as you seem
When you're feeling alone, know only time can take you on.
When you're feeling alone, know only time can take you on (take you on)
I look up at the sky
I see no god we both know.
I've woken up to find your a long time ago
Running from the past felt I was gone with the wind.
Life must be round I ended up back here again.
And in the dying cries of the pain that you feel,
know that, when I'm thinking, I am thinking of your still.
When you're feeling alone, know only time can take you on.
When you're feeling alone, know only time can take you on (take you on).
I look up at the sky.
I see no god we both know.
I've woken up to find your a long time ago.
