Broken In All the Right Places

i am jen

Look at you and you look at me in the mirror, my analogy, and yes it seems that I have a way that is something strange (that everybody wants to rearrange)
You know I never thought I was a beauty queen and I never felt like a part of the scene but when I look at you and you look at me
I never want you to change a thing

I see you broken in all the right places
(I never want you to change a thing)
I see you broken in all the right places
(All of the right places)

Got a message from the TV screen said I need a body made of plasticine I could get a model made to the extreme but it wouldn't matter if you know what I mean You know I never thought I had to rearrange and I kept the pieces that I thought were strange and when I look at you and you look at me
I never want you to change a thing

I see you broken in all the right places
(Look at you and you look at me
I never want you to change a thing)

I see you broken in all the right places
I think I'm broken in all the right places
Look at you and you look at me
said I never want you to change a thing
I think I'm Broken in all the right places

Lyrics submitted by Candace.

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/