Waiting for the Sun to Rise

The Figgs

steppin out, growin old walkin out into the cold leavin traces on the street they're seein how you drag your feet walk a mile or two or three walk until you can't be seen if you needed nothin more why'd you leave an open door haven't you been here before

patiently
waitin for the sun to rise hopefully
but when it comes you'll run and hide you'll disappear
we'll disappear
in the heat

shut your eyes you can sleep if you lay down in the street in the gutter lay your head and never mind you're seein red with your lover you can sleep nothin left but I'll never leave sittin there across your knee now it's so far out of reach and no-one hears you when you speak

but when it comes you'll run and hide
you'll disappear
yeah we'll disappear
in the heat

(instrumental verse)

patiently
oh when it comes you'll run and hide you'll disappear
yeah we'll disappear
we'll disappear
in the heat
