

Your Love, It Lies

Gene

While chimneys seep, my room is dark
The wardrobe sees you sleep, there's nothing here
But rumbles from our street and I'm left wanting moreI've tried to ask while stooping down
Your mouth began to gasp, oh look at that I think I'd better pass, so I'm left wanting moreIf given time and a cheap dark room and I will Show you all the love and wonder you could buyThis town lies calm, the low sun climbs
And if you give me time, I'll take your arms
And tend you like a vine still left wanting moreYour love, it lies, those hands deny
The hatred in your eyes, so turn that down
And give me a reply but I'm left wanting moreIf given time and a cheap dark room and I will Show you all the love and wonder you could buy
And all the great loves of this world are cast asunder
Because here comes my thunder, just for tonight, no need to buyIf given time and a cheap dark room and I will Show you all the wonder you could buy
And all the great loves of this world are cast asunder
Because here comes my thunder, just for tonight, no need to buy
