

The Leo

Jared Hart

Take a seat next to me
Let me tell you a story
That I think you might want to hear
Tell me about low tides
Tell me about the glory
Of the vessel that you used to steer
Of the gunfights
Of the limelight
She's got a feeling no it just don't seem right
Of the shipwrecked,
Of your best bets
Keep talking I can hear just fine Do you believe in angels, darling?
I saw one in a dream
(just the other night)
And if these walls could talk
You know we'd live forever So take a chance on me
That your memory will never fade
And with your heart like a lion
Open the door
As your years start to turn into days
And as the years go by
And these days they turn into nights
With your heart like a lion
Open the door
Come on, let's go for a ride See there's a first
And a last time for everything
I wish I knew it then, I wouldn't have to choose
I wanna know what happened
To the wedding ring
I want to see the moment that it came loose
How you caught her
Close to the water
(She swears she knows you never took this long to call)
About the bedside
About your daughter
About the trees across from the wall Do you believe in angels, darling?
I saw one in a dream
(just the other night)
And if these walls could talk

You know we'd live forever
So take a chance on me
That your memory will never fade
And with your heart like a lion
Open the door
As your years start to turn into days
Open the door
Come on, let's go for a ride
Swear on you
And everyone that you knew
So take a chance on me
That your memory will never fade
Open the door
