

Listen Up

Balthazar

There is no one to say: "I can't get in your head"

But I, well, I can see the night which you wed You're trying so many notes and joining with the chore
But know I was the one that will clear your throat Hold your sign before I get time of your ways to turn a blind eye

Hold your sign before I get time of your ways to turn a blind eye
Now listen up, now listen once again
before we start this, before we begin

This isn't mine to win, it was never meant to say anything.

But listen up, now listen once again,

I know you're looking for the truth within, another poet's sin, for all concern I ask stop listening Hold your sign before I get time of your ways to turn a blind eye

Hold your sign before I get time of your ways to turn a blind eye
Now listen up, now listen once again
before we start this, before we begin

This isn't mine to win, it was never meant to say anything.

But listen up, now listen once again,

I know you're looking for the truth within, another poet's sin, for all concern I ask stop listening
Now listen up,
now listen once again

before we start this, before we begin

This isn't mine to win, it was never meant to say anything.

But listen up, now listen once again,

I know you're looking for the truth within, another poet's sin, for all concern I ask stop listening
Now listen up,
now listen once again

This isn't mine to win, it was never meant to say anything.

But listen up, now listen once again,
