

Holding On to You

Story of the Year

another year has gone so fast another life becomes the past under the weight of dreams that I never thought would last feelings clash a satellite across the globe this window seat becomes my home I lie awake for hours staring at the world below into the waves again i go

i found a way to make it though

another night just slips away wishing that time would let me stay stuck in between two lives that could never be the same I remain without a chance to say to you that every world I said was true I lie awake all night just staring back at you

just one more day we'll make it through will you - still feel the same what that I do will you feel the way I do?
