Can't think of anything that gets
Any better 'cause it's oldChange, change would prob'ly do me good
Wouldn't prob'ly hurt a thing
Anyway, that's what I'm toldI would have run, but I couldn't run
Would have flown, but I couldn't fly
I woulda headed right back into town
I woulda lied, but I couldn't lie
'Cause I knewStop, stop and take a better look

In the corner of a darkened roomThings, things that either one time fell
Or blew down from a windowsill
Or never got up by the broomI would have run, but I couldn't run
Would have flown, but I couldn't fly
I woulda headed right back into town
I woulda lied, but I couldn't lie
'Cause I knewNo two ways about it, it's a doggone shame
Baby, it's a doggone shameI would have run, but I couldn't run
Would have flown, but I couldn't fly
I woulda headed right back into town
I woulda lied, but I couldn't lie
'Cause I knew
