Be Still And Breathe

Ivoryline

Everything they said about you
Everything they've known was wrongDid you hear me call your name? Did you hear me call
Or were your thoughts just too loud?
Or were your thoughts just loud enough for you to miss it?
I thought you'd be listening a little more intently for meBut I'll be here when you're ready
Until then just be still and breathe
Just be still and breathe
But I was screaming, I was screamingEverything they said about you
Everything they've known was wrong
The outside doesn't feel
What the inside knows is realDid you see me walking back
Through the same door that I left
The same door that I left?
Why didn't you stop me if you could, stop me?There was something that I missed
Probably 'cause I didn't want to find it
I didn't want to find itThen came the arguments
Now there is silence, just be still and breathe
Just be still and breathe
And we're both breathing, we're both breathingEverything they said about you
Everything they've known was wrong
The outside doesn't feel
What the inside knows is realEverything they said about you
Everything they've known was wrong
The outside doesn't feel
What the inside knows is realJust walk away and save everything you can
And save everything you can
Just walk away and save anything you can, anythingEverything they said about you
Everything they've known was wrong
The outside doesn't feel
What the inside knows is realEverything they said about you
Everything they've known was wrong
There's a place that they don't know
And that's where I call my home
Where I call my home
