Another Day

Carman

When I pray I seek an answer
I don't want a song and dance or Assume I know and take a chance or go astrayListen now to my request and Send a word so I can rest and Get direction to my question, and feel okBut I know not now don't mean never
So I'll just do what I must do and trust You foreverAn answer soon will come my way, but it may come another day
The wind will blow the clouds away, but it may blow another day
God's promises are always true, a rainbow somewhere waits there too
But until then, You'll see me through another day
Like the boy with loaves and fishes
I got hopes and lots of wishes
It would be just so delicious to hear Your voiceOh sometimes I want to weep LordA hundred prayers and not a peep Lord
Give me something I can keep Lord through the noiseCuz I know not now don't mean never
So I'll just do what I must do and trust You foreverAn answer soon will come my way, but it may come another day
The wind will blow the clouds away, but it may blow another day
God's promises are always true, a rainbow somewhere waits there too
But until then, You'll see me through another day
God's promises are always true, a rainbow somewhere waits there too
But until then, You'll see me through another dayAn answer soon will come my way, but it may come another day
An answer soon will come my way, but it may come another day
An answer soon will come my way
