Who Can You Believe In?

Youth Brigade

it seems that life is a system a duality at best a choice of taking this or that yet there's more than east or west don't limit yourself despite what you've been taught it's so hard to decide what's right or wrong until you get caught it's difficult to understand and i know it get's confusing trust and faith are just mere words, so always ask your self who can you belive in the politics that run our lives the institutions that guide us don't always work the way they should they seem to function despite us what's in the food we eat what's in the air we breathe what do we need tos ustain us, the knowledge of one man's life is not enough to maintain us when you think about it there is so little that we know everything is relative and most is just for show so when you find your world crashing down all around you close your eyes and listen to yourself and then let go

Lyrics provided by
https://damnlyrics.com/