

Barefoot Blues

Laika

Any body's better than nobody
'Cause one's never better than two
Any body's better than nobody
For me and my barefoot bluesI'm spending money like water
And drinking life like wine
But it's a big old bed in a lonesome house
Unhappiness all I findOnce I danced in sunshine
I used to laugh at the rain
Did the belly-rub with all kinds of men
Lord, I'd love to do it againBut in this sea of scorn and laughter
I look for the silvery moon
But there's no one but me and my lonely key
A bare bulb rented roomI'm going down to the river
Gonna have me a little swim
An autumn flower in the frozen rain
Can't believe the state I'm in'Cause a body was better than nobody
And one seemed worse than two
When that anybody turned to nobody
And left me to my barefoot blues
