Heartattack in a Layby

Porcupine Tree

I pull off the road
East of Baldock and Ashford
Feeling for my cell
In the light from the dashboardHissing from the road
The smell of rain in the air con
Maybe check the news
Or just put a tape onLighting up a smoke
I've got this feeling inside me
Don't feel too goodIf I close my eyes
And fell asleep in this layby
Would it all subside
The fever pushing the day byMotor window wind
I could do with some fresh air
Can't breathe too wellI guess, I should go now
She waits for me
She's waiting to make up
Home waits for me
To tell me she's sorry
She waits for me
And how much she missed me
Home waits for meI guess, I'm just burnt out
She waits for me
I really should slow down
Home waits for me
I'm perfectly fine but
She waits for me
I just need to lie down
Home waits for meWe'll grow old together
She waits for me
We'll grow old together
Home waits for me
