

If Only

Rod Stewart

If only I'd have listened to all of my closest friends
And knew that it was over and the party had to end
If only I'd have noticed the sadness in her eyes
She'd still be in my arms tonight, if only
If only I'd have realized the unimportance of being cool
To give a kiss and maybe just say, "Darlin', I love you"
If only I'd said, "I'm sorry" I'd have been a much better man
She'd still be in my arms tonight, if only
There's an emptiness that fills my heart
Now that she's not here
I loved her more than my own life
Something I've always feared, if only
If only I'd come home at night instead of stayin' out for one more drink
If only I'd been unconcerned what the other guys may think
If only I'd held her tight but I guess it's too late now
Oh, how blind could one man be? If only
Whoa, but I will not be sad after all the fun we've had
You live some and you learn some, if only
If only I could convince her the importance of one more chance
If only God would allow me one more celestial dance
If only I had the nerve to call her up and tell her how I feel
She'd still be in my arms tonight, if only
But it's only love and love ain't real
It's only a four letter word
We spend half our lives chasing after it
How wonderfully absurd, if only
Whoa, but I will not be sad after all the fun we had
You live some and you learn some Whoa, but I will not be sad after all the fun that we had
You live some and you learn some, you learn some, if only
