

Princess

Lee DeWyze

Do you remember sleeping on the floor?
Talking about how things were before And who will save you now?
And who can show you how to love again? The poison of your kiss
The waterfall of words from your lips And who will save you now?
And who can show you how to love again? I tried to forget you
And not let you down
But the hardwood on the floor has melted
And you're wearing your crown And who can save you now?
And who can show you how to love again?
