Witness the Change

Pete Shelley

In my mind there are mirrors

Reflecting on the past

The shattered hopes and dreams of a future

That was never meant to lastJust turn around now

Tell me what you see

Look all around you

Is this how things could be Had enough of love neverlasting

But now I know it never will

Hanging around on the off chance

Waiting for that certain thrillJust turn around now

See what we have done

It's getting late now

The future has begunWitness the change

Witness the changeSome kinds of love are magical mystical

I wonder how I'd feel

If ever I should be so enchanted

To get a taste of what is realJust look around now

Tell me what you see

Look all around you

Is this how things could be I feel the sound of thunder and laughter

It's tearing me apart

I start to fade till all that's remaining is

The echo of my heartJust look around you

See what we have done

It's getting late now

The future has begunWitness the change

Witness the change

Witness the change Witness the change

Witness the changeI have a feeling and I know it will never die

Part of the answer for asking the reason why

Out of the darkness the bright light surrounding me

I am a part of everything I touch and seeI feel the sound of thunder and laughter

It's tearing me apart

I hope that you will remember

The echo of my heartWitness the change
