I Hate It Too

Hum

Morning gray ignites a twisted mess of foreign shapes and sounds I wish the ceiling was the ground I'll send you flowers made of silent tiny pieces of the sun To help me make up for this oneWhile you send me tidal waves of love when you're alone And I can't remember what you do To find a way to turn the signal back to Heaven sounding blue And bring me faithful back to youAnd she don't hold me right, she's never going to get me there And she don't hold me right, she's never going to get me there Not tonightIf we break off gently in slow motion Spinning outward into space My hand always floating gently at the wheel While you sweetly hold my faceAnd I need you to give it meaning I need you to share the view Or it becomes a time for me to love myself Like every other thing I doShe don't hold me right, she's never going to get me there And she don't hold me right, she's never going to get me there Not tonight
