Underneath the Wheel

Garrison Starr

Oh my God, my heart's as heavy as a stone
And where's the spark that always lights the road back homeI feel like I'm slipping away, falling down, down, down
And I feel like you're getting away and I'm underneath the wheelHigh and low, I've looked in every crack and corner
To redefine all that is right but out of orderI feel like I'm slipping away falling down, down, down
And I feel like you're getting away and I'm underneath the wheelI used to stand so tall oblivious to being small
Or anything that might clip my wingsI'm coming to accept the moment I've been given
The harder I try, the more trouble I get myself inSo I feel, like I'm slipping away
