

Virginia Clemm

Katzenjammer

He was a child I was a child Sentimental and wild
Now we're resting
Now we're resting
For twelve short years we lived out of health and of prosperous wealth oh my dearest
My only portrait to remind you my wine on your old cloak my voice sustained in our piano comme les carillons de notre nuit de nocces Heir of my illness writer of all the stories and the words that I'm haunting
that I'm haunting
When your heart is on your sleeve then I'll bid you my sweet adieu don't forget me
don't forget me
The other woman to explain her letters I deplore I'm the flare inside your sorry dark eyes and I'll leave you nevermore
