Save The Whale

Nik Kershaw

In the turquoise inner space
The giants live with grace
At peace with peace
At peace with god and menTheir spirits rise and fall
Much greater than us all
They trust too much
To see their bitter end
Never in a million years, they say
It could never come to this, no way
You should never trust man, my friendsSo as I stare to sea
The salt winds call to me
And as they call
I hang my head in shame
Any other would could call their bluff
But any other world would scream enough
The ocean cries louder to meSave the whale . . . save the whale . . . save the whale . . .save the whale . . . save the whale . . . save the whale . . .
To never kiss and tell
Their factory ship farewell
With every scream
A piece of conscience dies
Lying in a crimson resting place
Crying with a smile upon his face
The giant dies trusting in meAny other world would call their bluff
But any other world would scream enough
The ocean cries louder to meSave the whale . . . save the whale . . . save the whale . . .and jesus christ almighty
Save the whale . . . save the whale . . . save the whale . . .
For all our sakes . . . save the whale
