Missing Cleveland

Scott Weiland

You were dressed up at the bar
They expected us to fall from the heavens
It's only seven, they were monkeys all of them
Entertainment summer stain
Wondering whether, it's now or neverStrapped into the monkey scene
Like a Martian chimpanzee
Love you more than ever
When you broke my lawsYou're holding on but letting go
I'm missing Cleveland and the snow
And lonely thoughts where everybody
Knows the truth and lets it beWe'll have a dream and you don't care
At least it seems so when you're there
What really hurts these sometimes lonely
When your feet are on the groundThere was you and there was me like the perfect family
Thought we'd always live forever
One and one and one makes three
And in change a glass of pain
Glad we got it truly toxicStrapped into the monkey scene
Like a Martian chimpanzee
Love you more than ever
When you broke my lawsYou're holding on but letting go
I'm missing Cleveland and the snow
The lonely thoughts where everybody
Knows the truth and lets it beWe'll have a dream and you don't care
At least it seems so when you're there
What really hurts these sometimes lonely
When your feet are on the groundOnce again I am alone, now I'm older
Never meant to let you go, noYou're holding on but letting go
I'm missing Cleveland and the snow
The lonely thoughts where everybody
Knows the truth and lets it beWe'll have a dream and you don't care
At least it seems so when you're there
What really hurts is sometimes lonely
When your feet are on the ground
