Your Worst Mistake

Strung Out

Shotgun kiss from me to you and nothing more its strange to hear you sound like you dont need me anymore but hearts and thoughts in the cradle fall apart and melt away no time for a reaction just the honesty...to say once again I've done my job of pushing you away its the rise and fall of the beginning and the end of another day the traps I set the risk I bet the one that got away i sit, down to wonder why
the weight of the world is all i ever have to give so write me off
as just another mistake that you once made digging to get nowhere, i surround myself with good luck charms useless and intangable, i keep it moving straight ahead assess the situation, make a desicion, execute and crawl Aching to move on
is all i ever seem to give
