

The Mason

Wovenwar

No thought is given to the consequences
To need to see what might become
It's like we need to sabotage our other love in our lives
To prove control is so far from undone And I, I have caved in, again
But I, I'm building from the wreckage We bend, we break, we're forced to heal
The storm's intentions are revealed The truth becomes to usher in deliverance
For the weight of the past I can't tow
But like the river where the soda shakes and withers my home
To a place I barely know
We bend, we break, we're forced to heal
The storm's intentions are revealed
Trying to wake and then creates and tears us down
We bend, we break, we learn to heal
Sirens are blown from bracing hands too tight
So strike away the grip of past mistakes And I, I have caved in, again
But I, I have caved in again but.
We bend, we break, we're forced to heal
The storm's intentions are revealed
Trying to wake and then creates and tears us down
We bend, we break, we learn to heal
Sirens are blown from bracing hands too tight
So strike away the grip of past mistakes
Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>