

These Hands

Linda Hirschhorn

Life, it's like I'm never there
Time, I've got no more to spare
Awake to the sound of a million people
Look around to see that no one's there
Breaking out of a new cell
What you wanted to be
Try to reason, try to think
Want some sympathy
Used, these hands are used and dirty
And screaming for something new
Wait, I've waited for so long
To break away from all that's wrong
But it's inconsequential, it seems nothing matters
It seems nothing matters unless you scream
Breaking out of a new cell
What you wanted to be
Try to reason, try to think
Want some sympathy
Used, these hands are used and dirty
And screaming for something new
You said nothing
Break up the pieces, they're killing you slowly
No fiction fact or fantasy could make you see
Breaking out of a new cell
What you wanted to be
Try to reason, try to think
Want some sympathy
