

The Afterlife Pt. II

Run On Sentence

I can't explain why the night sky
won't let me sleep
It aint like I'm tired of sunshine
but when the wind blows through the dark trees and the stars puzzle me I somehow no longer fear dyin No one may ever know just what we are but we're certainly bound for the soil never to be destroyed only to be transformed into particles of the whole I believe in something large and powerful that doesn't know a thing, I believe in something small and beautiful that lives in everything in the breath of the afterlife you can write your name on the window of every car and still won't mean anything anything at all
