

Oh My Sister

Jane Siberry

Oh, my sister, what did you say to them?

You've got to use a little tact

Leave out words like 'bombs', 'gurus', or 'India'

You won't set the world on fire if you separate yourself from them like that

Oh, my sister, you are so critical

How did you ever get this hard?

He only wanted to kiss you and when he couldn't 'score'

He told his friends and now all the boys are afraid of you

Of us all, you were most modest

Even though you were last to lower your hem

Throw your jeans out the window, put them on behind the fence

Oh, I laugh, you put such feeling into your indifference

Oh, my sister, you don't know why I love you

It could be the untouchable innocence that I see in you sometimes

Or the loss that I feel when you pass through my mind

Or maybe because I'm supposed to

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnlrics.com/>