

Never Enuff

Mansions

You stopped believing in God,
so he stopped believing in you.
Told you to get a real job,
those days in the sand are through.

And he swears that he isn't mad,
as he quietly let him down.
It's just he tried to believe,
you wanted him around.

But all that you say now is,
"I don't love you like I used to.
When people talk, I don't defend you.
I tried so hard, I paid my dues,
but it was never enough.
I was never enough for you."

Well, you made a new friend,
and it tears him apart.
No, he just can't pretend,
that you're not breaking his heart.

When he sees you out at night,
he tires his best to pick a fight.
But you'll never be his and it's time he realized, that nothing is alright.

You say,
"I don't love you like I used to.
When people talk, I don't defend you.
I tried so hard, I paid my dues,
but it was never enough.
I was never enough for you."

And now,
"I don't love you like I used to.
When people talk, I don't defend you.
Yeah, all that shit you put me through,
it was never enough.
I was never enough for you."

Lyrics submitted by Shelby.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnlyrics.com/>