

Everything Turns Grey

Agent Orange

Things don't seem to be as easy
As they used to be
It's getting harder every day
To think of better things to say About what's going on around you
And what's happening inside you
When it's time to change you won't know how
It won't matter years from now No matter what you think or do or say
Everything turns gray This is it, the darkest hour
Isn't it depressing how our Minds create an atmosphere
That won't happen here Unless we make some new demands
To grasp the future in our hands
You know I wish I could but it's too late
For senseless minds that love to hate No matter what they think or do or say
Everything turns gray No matter what they think or do or say
Everything turns gray
