

Staring Back

Pillar

There seems to be something goin' on inside of you
Maybe what you need is just another point of view
But not from me, that's not for me to do
So, step back, relax, take a second, look inside of you And you can see an image of yourself you never saw before
Despite all the trauma you've felt
If one way or another, we all are bright stars
It's just a simple way to find out who we really are Why do we let it out of control? Has all this taken a toll?
I don't know if we can take anymore
We've got to stop and take a look in the mirror before Step back, take a look inside yourself
From the outside, you can see someone else staring back at you
It's your reflection
Step back, take a look inside yourself
From the outside, you can see someone else staring back at you
It's your reflection Why do you feel so empty every time you've had enough?
Well, maybe you don't realize with what you've been fillin' up
It's plain to see that eventually you will see
The Jekyll and Hyde game in your mind is just a simile Why do we let it out of control? Has all this taken a toll?
I don't know if we can take anymore
We've got to stop and take a look in the mirror before Step back, take a look inside yourself
From the outside, you can see someone else staring back at you
It's your reflection
Step back, take a look inside yourself
From the outside, you can see someone else staring back at you
It's your reflection It's your perception has started to get a little numb
It's your perfection isn't helpin' anyone
Your reflection is the only way for you to see
For your protection, you need to see reality Step back, take a look inside yourself
From the outside, you can see someone else staring back at you
It's your reflection
Step back, take a look inside yourself
From the outside, you can see someone else staring back at you
It's your reflection

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>