White Prism

Lou Reed

There's a white prism with phony jism Spread across it's face

And the soulful convicts forever interred

Lose the smile across their faces

The smile that registered hopes or dreams

Has proven just a wasteAnd I'm the indentured servant

Forever in his place

I'm the indentured servant

Forever in his placeI wish I built a cabinet

Of shiny bolts and wood

Secret draws and hiding places

Sculpted out of wood

Secret places, secret lies

In a desk lying aloneA secret letter written to you

To be read when you're alone

A secret letter written to you

To be read when you're aloneIt says, I'm your indentured servant

I can no longer pretend

That I'm a lover or an equal

I'm not even a friend

I'm not good enough to serve you

I'm not good enough to staySo it is that I beseech you

To please turn me away

So it is that I beseech you

To please turn me away Turn me away

Turn me away

Turn me awayI'm asking you to let me go

It hurts me when you're sad

And I can not do better than this

Which must surely make you mad

I'd be better off in your cabinet

Or in a prison made of clothCrouched beneath your dress I come

Shooting little spurts

Crouched beneath your dress I come

Shooting little spurtsI'm your indentured servant

But even I have pride

In what I make or say or do

Although I've lots to hide

I hide from freedom and I hide from you

'cause you've found me outI belong in prison beneath your legs
In a cabinet that I've built
Beneath a candle in a secret drawer
In a prison by a moatI'm your indentured servant
And I'm asking you to leave
Me outside this prison cell
Where only you can breathe
I-i-i, I'm your indentured servant
But I'm asking you for thisPlease release me from this love
And do it with a kiss
I'm your indentured servant
I'm the one you'll missDo it with a kiss
Do it with a kiss
I'm the one you'll miss
