Too Much

Sufjan Stevens

If I was a different man If I had the blood in my e-e-eyes I could have read of your heart I could have read of your h-h-heartNow I'm lonely instead, I pick up a fight So pick up your battle and with love I want to see itThere's too much riding on that There's too much, too much, too much love There's too much riding on that There's too much, too much loveThere's too much riding on that There's too much, too much, too much love There's too much riding on that anyway, ey, yeahAnd maybe I'm talking too fast And maybe I'm talking too much Give me the sensitive laughDon't give me the sensitive touch Even if I could have kissed And even if I could be the blood I'm so sorry, I'll try love I want to see itThere's too much riding on that There's too much, too much, too much love There's too much riding on that There's too much, too much loveThere's too much riding on that There's too much, too much, too much love There's too much riding on that anyway, ey, yeah
