One False Word

Faith In Exile

She calls my name
She knows my shame
I know this time I'm not the one to blame
She holds my hand just because she can
Every lie I believe makes me feel less like a man
We play her game as she runs through my veins
To her a lie and a promise are just one in the same
Cold in her throws
I hope she dies alone, I hope she dies alone

One false word is still too much
I know we are not strong enough
One false word, you've said enough
I know we are not strong enough

Living in sin
I cannot win
The wealth of her lies is crawling under my skin
She is the key to my misery
All I really want is to set myself free
So I'll cut her out, 'cause I can do without all the bullshit and strife
I've had to endure throughout
Bleed before the throne
I hope you die alone, I hope you die alone

One false word is still too much
I know we are not strong enough

One false word, you've said enough
I know we are not strong enough

One false word is still too much
I know we are not strong enough

One false word, you've said enough
I know we are not strong enough

One false word is still too much

I know we are not strong enough

One false word, you've said enough
I know we are not strong enough
