Love Will Survive

Little River Band

Don't take it so hard
You know in the end, when the heartache is gone
That the feelings always live on
The peace that I found holding you
No one else would do
And the love that links for all time, for all time
Don't let the hurt show, you have to let go
You can't keep holding on to what you know is goneLove will survive
Don't try to stay, there ain't no way
You can't keep holding on to what you know is gone
And you will find that your love will survive
The memories fade, the past disappears
Even though you're alone, you must still carry on Somewhere in the night, you'll find someone else who will answer your call
Then you'll find that love will survive, will survive
Don't let the hurt show, you have to let go
You can't keep holding on to what you know is goneLove will survive
Don't try to stay, there ain't no way
You can't keep holding on to what you know is gone
And you will find that your love will survive
Yes, I know that it's all so confusing
When it seems like you're losing, and you don't understand
Oh, don't give up, don't give in
For as one day ends, another begins
Another beginsDon't let the hurt show, you have to let go
You can't keep holding on to what you know is gone
Love will survive
Don't try to stay, there ain't no way
You can't keep holding on to what you know is gone
And you will find that your love will survive
Yes, you'll find that your love will survive
