

Everybody Breaks a Glass

Lights

It's not a solid, not a soft thing to pull the wool up like a smoke screen Nobody does it like a prophet It's gone before you know you lost it There are reasons you keep your hands tied There's certain things you shouldn't have tried So if you gotta tell me something, You better go from the beginning We all forget to sleep, and crash at someone's feet Everybody skips a beat We let the chances pass, the few we held so fast Everybody breaks a glass
And here I'm standing in the middle, not just a little but a hill full wondering how I got a head cold wishing I didn't know what I know It's never been about the money We're worthy or we are not worthy however much you got on your plate you're as good as you reciprocate we all pretend to keep our tongue out of our cheek everyone's the fool they seek we all go off the track and feel for our way back everybody breaks a glass Shook, scared to look at peers when they peer back it's weird how we fear that it's weird how we wear masks it appears we fear our own tears more than tear gas my teams struggling in the years past looking to draft beer to bring cheers back but when the drinking games are finished, no Guinness, just a clear glass seeing our real image being mirrored back the places that we go to cope it's not strange when we are older folks it doesn't change, trying to hang, we don't know the ropes when we fall, we got more than our shoulders broke it's no game it's why we overdose on cocaine get our brains comatose, there's no blame if you've ever known shame, know pain known days when it really doesn't feel okay, ah Somewhere perfection lies but not for you and I everybody trips sometime when cities fall like shacks, walls eventually crack everybody breaks a glass
