A Little Bit

Neisha Dunn

Stand there,
sinking slowly underneath the ocean tide.
She's leaving all her worries far behind her,
for just tonight.
And secretly, that's all she needs.
The thousandth time's the charm-
It's so alarming when they up and walk away.Boy, if they're not blind they must be stupid.
So confusing, but she's thanking god that tomorrow's a new day.Chorus
She's a little bit lonely, and in between.
I'm hoping she'll stop running away.
Someday she'll say to me,
"I've got a thousand reasons to stay"Teardrops falling slowly,
steady flowing from her eyes.
And as the world is growing darker,
she moves further down the line.Truthfully, she's always been a girl who's shoved aside.
It's traumatizing, but it happens everyday.
Try so hard to speak up,
but it comes out as a sqeak that noone ever hears,
she needs someone to say.(Chorus)We're all a little stuck,
A little rough.
A little bit useless at some time.
A little bit out of our minds.
A little lost,
A little scared.
A little naive and unaware,
A little bit a little afraid to commit,
A little bit.

Lyrics provided by
https://damnlyrics.com/