The Way It Is

Glenn Hughes

In the silence of the morning
Comes a burnin' yellow light
A brand new day is dawnin'
And nothin' felt so rightInside I feel the spirit
As I face and turn the sun
And you were nowhere near it
Now my life has just begunI don't want you, I don't want you
I don't want you anyway
And I could never, I could never
Hurt you the way that you hurt meAnd I don't understand
How could anyone have the right
To try and take my freedom
I don't want you, I don't want you
I don't want you anywayPush your boat out into the water
As the tide comes rushing out
Your mother's only daughterNow there seems to be some doubt
As you walk across the wasteland
That you seem to be proud of
You lay shackled in your fortress
That you look down from aboveI could never hurt you
I'm not that kind of man
