

Life's Lessons

Lynyrd Skynyrd

Mmm
I listen and still I haven't heard
Tell me what is the word
And if I ever heard it
Would it be clear as water? Oh tears run down your face
Reflects the human race
We're all caught up with winnin'
Losin' time and space Life's lessons, so you think you know it all
But you're headin' for a fall
Oh to make it back again
You'll have to crawl and step back Take a look around
Are your feet still on the ground
Oh can we find you in the section
Of lost and found Never think you got it figured out
'Cause when you do, you begin to doubt
It's time for you to open your eyes Will we look back and see what we've done?
Will we be proud or ashamed of what we've become?
Will we realize we all share one fate
Or is this another life's lesson, too late? Oh never think you've got it figured out
'Cause when you do, you begin to doubt
It's time for you to open your eyes Oh will we look back and see what we've done?
Will we be proud or ashamed of what we've become?
Will we realize we all share one fate?
Is this another life's lesson, too late? Will we look back and see what we've done?
Ohh Ohh
Will we realize we all share one fate?
Ohh life's lessons
Ohh Ohh Ohh yeah life's lessons
Ohh, life's lessons Will we look back and see what we've done?
Will we realize we all share one fate?

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>